Lectionary Thoughts

The Mystery of the Incarnation

By Delmer Chilton - from livinglutheran.com

In 1675, a fire destroyed most of London. Therefore, many of London's most impressive, beautiful and famous buildings were built between 1675 and 1725. In 1684 Sir Christopher Wren laid the cornerstone for what would be his greatest building, St. Paul's Cathedral.

It took 35 years to complete. When it was finished, Queen Anne took a tour of the building. Wren waited breathlessly to see what she would say. At the end of a thorough tour, the queen pronounced her verdict. "It's awful; it's amusing; it's artificial."

What? "It's awful; it's amusing; it's artificial?" Wren must have been devastated, we think. But he wasn't. He was delighted. In those days, "awful" meant, "full of awe, awe inspiring, awesome;" amusing meant, "amazing, unbelievable;" and artificial meant "artistic." What sounded to us like a devastating critique was, to Wren's ears, the highest praise.

Today's Gospel lesson says that "The Word became flesh and lived among us." I am wondering how we make sense of this sentence in the modern world. Perhaps it is as foreign to our ears and our understanding as the queen's praise of Wren's cathedral.

It must be admitted that the incarnation, God's act of becoming human, has been difficult to comprehend and accept in any time and any place, not just the West in the 21st century. Martin Luther said, "The mystery of humanity of Christ, that he sunk himself into our flesh, is beyond all human understanding." It is not a truth that can be explained by science or logic; it can only be proclaimed as revealed truth. But once it has been proclaimed, it can be explored so as to better understand the difference this mystery makes in our lives.

In these few verses, the writer of John uses two philosophical and religious ideas current in the first century in order to get at what happened when God was born as a baby in Bethlehem. There is "logos" from Greek philosophy, which is the truth or wisdom of God. Then there is the Jewish biblical idea that when God created the world, God spoke the world into being – "God said, let there be light, etc." (Genesis 1:3 and following.) John then taps into the early church's memory and proclamation about the man Jesus and the things he said and did. He puts it all together with soaring, poetic prose to show us Jesus as the living expression of God's truth and wisdom spoken into earthly existence.

John proclaims to us that Jesus was the living, breathing, very human, creative and life-giving power of God. John shows us God on one side and humanity on the other and Jesus in the middle as the word that God spoke to us about God's love and purpose for us all.

A few years ago at a funeral at which I presided, a young man spoke lovingly about his father, Henry, a working-class guy, a factory worker. The son had gone far, both far in life and far from home, studying in major universities in far-flung cities as he became first a medical doctor and then a well-respected expert in his specialty. At the funeral, the doctor said that often when he called home, he would apologize to his father for being so far away, for seldom being able to visit. And Henry would say, "It's OK son, it's OK. Alexander Graham Bell was a great man. He allowed us to go cheek-to-cheek anytime." Jesus was God's way of going "cheek-to-cheek" with us.

This is important because it made God's love for us real and tangible. Holy love is like human love in that it has to be embodied in order to be experienced. It is one thing to believe in "romantic love," in two people finding their heart's desire in each other, candlelight dinners, moonlight walks, eternal bliss. It is quite another thing for two people to live together, to struggle to work out their differences, to accept one another's flaws and shortcomings, to live face-to-face in a living, breathing less-than-ideal but oh-so-realistic relationship.

So it is with us and the holy. God became flesh and lived among us because God was not willing to be a far-off, spiritual ideal. God knew that for the divine/human relationship to be real, it had to be fleshed out. That "fleshing out" continues in the life of the church, the "body of Christ" as we embody our faith and love for God in our efforts to live lives of love with one another and the world.

Just like a marriage, it is seldom perfect. It is always a work in progress. It requires work to iron out our differences and accept one another's flaws and shortcomings, to forgive and trust and love and go forward together. It is difficult. It is also "awful, amusing and artificial."

New Member Class

A few people have expressed interest in becoming members of GSLC. If you're interested in learning more about the vision and ministries of GSLC then let the office know and Pastor will contact you to decide when the group will meet. The meetings involve learning some history of the ELCA (for those not familiar); some history of GSLC; and learning about our current vision and ministries going on here. After these discussions you can decide if you want to become a member or not. Either way you can learn more about the way we answer God's call in Kettering, OH. Hope to see you there.

Neighbor-to-Neighbor Food Pantry This Sunday

Be generous with your donations of food to the Neighbor-to-Neighbor Food Pantry this Sunday January 4. Any type of non-perishable food item or a cash donation are very much appreciated. This food pantry serves a large area of Kettering and is always in need of your support.

2015 Flower Chart

Please consider donating flowers for our services in honor of a person or event or in memory of a loved one by signing up on the new 2015 Flower Chart hanging in the narthex. We are late getting this posted, so donations for the first few weeks of 2015 would be greatly appreciated.

Financial Peace University

Stop and think about this for a second. Imagine what the people of God could do for the Kingdom of God if they were debt free. What would you be able to do if you were debt free? Imagine what it would feel like to be able to give freely and generously toward needs you feel passionate about, whenever God leads you to. Financial Peace University will walk you through the process that will get you there and make it incredibly practical in your daily life. And if you know anything about Dave Ramsey you know it's going to be a lot of fun! To learn more and register for the class, visit our GSLC website, or go the Financial Peace University website at daveramsey.com. Also come to the class preview on Monday January 26 at 7:00 pm in the Chapel to find out more. You'll be glad you did! The six-week class begins on Monday February 2. If you have additional questions, contact Martin Pierce at 287-4021 or Kathy Seim at 294-1145.

Prayer Shawls

The Good Shepherd Prayer Shawl Knitters and Crocheters sent seven prayer shawls to St. Luke's Hospice in Bethlehem, PA in December. St. Luke's provides hospice care for veteran service men and women. The prayer shawls sent to St. Luke's are always gratefully acknowledged by the facility and sometimes individual families send notes of thanks to the Good Shepherd group. A special request for red, white and blue prayer shawls has been received from St. Luke's Hospice. Anyone wishing to knit or crochet a prayer shawl to address the request would be very much appreciated. Monetary donations to help with the cost of mailing prayer shawls would also be appreciated. The Good Shepherd Prayer Shawl Knitters and Crocheters will meet on Monday January 12 in the lounge from 1:15 to 2:30 pm. Please join us as we use our hearts and hands to spread God's love through the prayer shawl ministry.

Lutheran Social Services Adult Mission Opportunity
